To whom it may concern,

Back in November of this year we had a 1,000 square foot suite that was exposed to a large amount of smoke from what was just short of becoming an actual fire. Fortunately, we were able to discover the problem prior to anything more serious taking place and causing serious damage to the suite or resort itself. The smoke smell was so strong following this that I informed our staff to avoid spending any prolonged time in the suite due to health concerns. Later on that same day we had the suite sprayed with the Titania treatment to see if it would do the trick of eliminating the strong smoke smell. The following day around 3:00 p.m. we had timeshare owners, who just happened to be board members, check into this same suite for their week stay. I never mentioned anything to them and they never stated to me anything about smoke smell. This was the proof in the pudding for me. We will not hesitate to use this treatment again if and when the need arises.

Sincerely,

Tony Nieblas
